WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine which renders it superior to any other in use:

It gives a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear;

It is entirely noiseless;

A patented device prevents the loop being turned backward;

The machine can be set wrong;

Can be used as readily without other instructions than are supplied with the Machine;

It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars enquire of

The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

FRIDAY MORNING DEC. 1, 1865.

The Mines of Montana

Many of the mining districts of Oregon Idaho and Montana are so great, both in extent and in richness that it might seem invidious to attach more value to one than to another The richest spot yet discovered is, without doubt, the Owyhee district Compared, however, with the mines of Montana, the Owyhee region is of small extent in Montana, both quarts and placer mines abound. The former are just beginning to be developed, the latter are somewhat better known, but as the country is not yet half explored, it is impossible to form any correct judgment of the vastness of the wealth which is yet concealed from view—the first appearances only of which, if we may so speak, have yet been discovered

The gold and silver region of Montana is larger than any other now known to exist From north to south for a distance of two hundred miles, the country has been partially examined, and at very many points with the most successful results The region of auriferous quarts is known to extend toward the east, as far as the Yellowstone river and toward the west as far as the bither side of the Rocky mountains. Placer mines are found in an irregular line along the mountains, both on the eastern and western slopes of this great range. A gentleman of much experience and of large observation gives it has his well settled conviction that the mines of California in the best days of that golden State, were not superior to those which the next year will disclose in Montana This gentleman places us in possession of some information relative to recent discoveries which we are glad to be able to give.

The value of the recent wonderful discovery of a lode of gold (which was announced in the Montana Post,) is much exaggerated The ledge is very rich, but it is nothing like a vein of solid gold as heretofore stated. Near the point where it was discovered a "chimney" or "pocket" was found, three feet in width, containing a vast amount of gold. We have seen a specimen from this spot. Seventy per cent. of the ore is gold. Five or six sacks of this mineral was obtained, the value of which cannot be less than fifty thousand dollars. The average rock of the ledge has not been tested, so that its value is not known, but gold in considerable quantities may readily be seen in it. This ledge, which the discoverers call the "Uncle Sam," has been traced for about three miles It has not yet been fully opened, and its owners are unable to form any accurate estimate of its value The width of the ledge is "about" three feet. It lies three miles south of Helena

We have also seen specimens of ore from the "Ocean Wave," a silver ledge lying northwest of Helena seven miles. This ore is of unusual richness and closely resembles that of the celebrated "Poorman" of Owyhee. On a comparison of specimens from the two ledges, they could hardly be distinguished from each other. The Montana lode was but recently discovered, and, of course, has not been worked extensively. It is one of a system of ten or twelve ledges, all of great richness.

South of Helena at a distance of ten miles lie many other ledges, lately discovered. These are all rich in silver. Some of them are equal to the best. North of Helena, as far as the country has been closely examined, ledges containing both gold and silver have been found. The region, extending from Bannock and Virginia City to Helena and even much further to the north, embracing an area of many thousands of square miles, bids fair to be richer, because more extensive than any other.

People continue to flock into the mines of Montana, notwithstanding the lateness of the season Next year there will be a very large population in that Territory. To secure its trade is a matter of especial importance to Oregon. We shall have to contend against a vigorous opposition on the further side, but there is no reason why we should not supply all places lying west of the Rocky Mountains, and even enter into competition for the trade of the eastern extremities of these mines.

KENTUCKY AND GEN. PALMER.—Our dispatches to day announce that General Palmer has been indicted by an enlightened grand jury Louisville on a charge of having intermeddled with the slave laws of that most benighted State. Now it is known that Gen Palmer is sustained by Mr Johnson, hence we may expect the self-sufficient and powerful Kentucky grand jury to indict the President soon The Kentucky Court has taken a very serious job on its hands, as will appear by a dispatch from Louisville, which was published not long ago The dispatch says

"The President has approved of the action of Gen. Thomas in retaining Gen Palmer in command of the Department of Kentucky, and the Secretary of War approves of Gen. Palmer's action in regard to granting pardons to colored persons."

The Statesman in its last issue grows furious under the exposure we made of its aims, plans and treasonable character. It tries to recoil from the light which we held it up in, and endeavors to find a refuge in calling us hard names. Its conduct reminds us of that of one of the great dramatist's most despicable characters, who after exhausting the whole vocabulary of billingsgate in reviling an opponent, exclaimed as he paused to recover himself "O for breath to utter what is like thee" But it cannot crawl under cover of the shower of mud which it as characteristically throws. We shall continue to dissect it with the utmost coolness, and to expose its treacherous scheme of a "new party," so that Union men may not be deceived by its hollow professions of fidelity to their cause.

THE REGULAR ARMY.—The question as to the propriety of increasing the regular army has been elaborately discussed by Generals Grant, Thomas, and other leading officers A proposition has been made which these Generals favor, and which looks to the increase of the infantry to forty regiments, with a corresponding augmentation of the other arms of the service Organized on this plan the army would consist of about seventy five thousand regular troops A late number of the New York Tribune says the army will be increased so that it will certainly number above fifty thousand men Secretary Stanton is said to favor the plan, which will, as it now appears, be adopted

ESTIMATES FOR 1866.—The interest on the public debt now amounts to one hundred and sixty five millions annually The expenses of the Navy Department for the next year are estimated at no more than twenty three millions It is thought that if the War Department can succeed in reducing its expenditures to a proportionately low figure the entire outlay of money for the next fiscal year will not exceed one hundred million dollars, exclusive of course of the interest on the public debt This sum amounts to little or no more than the annual cost of the Government during the Administration of Buchanan

DEATH OF MR WYLIE, OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS The Hawaiian Gazette of the 31st October announces the death of Robert Crichton Wylie, "Minister of Foreign Affairs, Secretary in charge of the War Department, Member of His Majesty's Privy Council of State, and Knight Great Cross of the Order of Kamehameha I" He was a native of Scotland and had been Secretary of Foreign Affairs for the Hawaiian Kingdom during a period of more than twenty years. He was a man of admirable character and was held in high estimation by the people of the Islands.

European Intelligence.

NEW YORK Nov 20 The steamship City of Lisbon from Liverpool the 8th and Queenstown the 9th has arrived

The pirate Shenandoah arrived in the Mersey on the 6th and surrendered to the guardship Donegal She is now in the hands of the naval authorities Captain Waddell states that the first information he received of the close of the war was on the 18th of August, from the British war vessel Barracouta, and that she immediately consigned her guns to the hold of the vessel and steered for Liverpool

The London Daily Express says it is the American may be limited to say that it was only stating that her conduct could be British harbor regulations but cannot help asking how the Shenandoah has been able to procure her course without the loan or isolation from the American Navy Could be possible that the expectation of receiving compensation for the loss resulting to her depredations from England and the American Government at less eager for her capture than she would have been otherwise and come to the conclusion that it would be one of the strongest practical arguments the claimants could bring forward against England

It is stated that Waddell sent a letter to Earl Russell the contents of which have not been known The Captain and crew are remaining on the pirate Shenandoah

The London Star says she will be claimed by the Americans and there is no reason for refusing to give her up

The London Post says the personal feelings of the Captain give rise to perplexing circumstances, but strict justice will be done by the tribunals

Earl Russell as Premier and Lord Clarendon as Minister of Foreign Affairs have been installed into office No material change will be made until February

The Shipping Gazette states that oil springs have been discovered in England

The French were to commence the evacuation of Rome on the 15th inst

The Spanish Government has ordered a strict watch over the coast of Cuba, owing to the fears of insurrection

New York, Nov. 20.—The Liverpool Post says that when Captain Waddell heard the real news or suspected that what he was told was true, he put about ship and ran for Lisbon, not knowing what interpretation the British or Federal Governments might put upon his conduct He entered the Tagus, paid off his crew, and put a new crew on board During his long cruise and long voyage he never encountered a British or an American man of war.

Liverpool ship agents to the London News say that on board the Shenandoah there are about thirty six chronometers, together with a number of sextants, cabin furniture, and other articles of value In her hold there still remains large quantities of ammunition

All accounts agree that the cholera is fast disappearing in Paris The mortality had diminished by the 14th of November to less than half of what it formerly was Since then a still further reduction was experienced The deaths, both in the hospitals and city, amounted to no more than 50 or 70 In Malta the deaths had diminished until they averaged not more than 14 per day.

Exodus

The great romances, and the great matters of fact are all marvellously alike in quality, and in the most poetic mood there is the keenest sense of use. In other times, when the world was in its youth, it did epic things somewhat, and valued them for their poetry; now that it is grown old and full of memories, its romance, like that of a middle aged man, is unconscious and hidden and forgotten in an obvious utility. But there never was anything so epic sung in the old times as an event of our own, which till now has been set to a higher music than the strains of the local rhymers to which Jenkins, not Homer is poet.

During the present week a national ship will bear from our port nearly a thousand good women who leave homes in our Atlantic civilization, and marry its piety and hope to the western shores of the continent, there to help build a fairer and nobler state and society far from the old world influences that weaken and corrupt us here. Those women are most of them young girls, from the shelter of farm house roofs in New England, where the war that took away a brother or father has given back want and hardship in his place, and others are the widows of those who fought to keep us our homes, and fell to lose their own. But, whoever they are, and whencesoever they come, it is certain that those gentle pioneers go out to the West with a high sense of the purpose to which they are devoted, and with hopes educated and purified by the adversities attendant upon the efforts of women at self-help in the East. All will part from some beloved thing—and all will taste the bitterness of exile in leaving places endeared by sorrow and trial. From one an aged mother shall part in doubt of earthly reunion, on the neck of one a poor old father shall weep, to one the hands and hopes of a brother shall cling, his reason applauding her resolution to be gone, his heart foreboding and imploring her to stay; to one, an orphan, but not friendless, tender friends shall say farewell; on one, a widow, the love of neighbors who have known her need and succored it, shall fondly wait; after everyone there there shall some-how, somewhere linger good-will and regret.

There is infinite pathos always in the courage of woman; for their courage is not in defiance of danger, but often in ignorance of it, often in trust of it. Their faith is so strong that they think evil cannot harm them; they love so blindly that they cannot believe hate sees; they hope so nobly that it seems impossible destiny should disappoint them. Upborne by this splendid and touching courage, most of these women will not sail upon their long journey West full of trust that they have left evil days behind them here, and in spite of their experience of life's violicitudes, will look to find in Washington Territory a promised land, where, if they work faithfully in the places allotted to them, neither trouble nor wrong shall visit them. They know that there is peril everywhere, and yet they trust it shall not peril every where, and yet they trust it shall not come near them there. Every one, while soaking to better her own state, has some manifest purpose in view, and no crusade of Christian crusaders, outnumbering these women by tens of thousands ever departed with more generous faith and hope upon a noble work. Conscious of this nobility of aim, they trust that fate shall spare them to their work.

Mr. Mercer, under whose guidance and care they go, has assumed a responsibility which few men would care to lay upon themselves, yet we have no reason to doubt that he is worthy to bear it. He has thus far conducted a mission, full of heroic poetry, in the most practicable and commonsensible way. He has held out great hopes and made great promises, and he has proven his good faith by setting his whole fortune upon the chances for success. The Government furnishes him merely the vessel for the transportation of his colony, and he pays from his own purse the cost of provision, and of manning and running the steamer, trusting the honor of his colonists for repayment from their earnings in vocations he has promised them. He sails with his charge, and it must be his to promote good feeling throughout the voyage. The venture has comic aspects which will suggest themselves, and the imagination cannot help figuring the awful task of reducing to harmony the multitudinous prejudices, caprices and assumptions of seven hundred young ladies. Forty married men go with Mr. Mercer, and twenty young men will be his allies; but this body is as a handful in the vast with the overwhelming numbers of ladies, and might be swept into the scap in a single tempest of passion. His trust, therefore, must be in them during the voyage, as theirs in him at the end; and we believe neither will have cause of disappointment.

From our shores many expeditions, involving great hope and high purpose, have departed before now; but the world had no worthier object of anxiety than this; and many curious doubts, as well as sympathising expectations, must follow this exodus of good women on their voyage around the Antarctic cape, and up the long Western shore of the continent to the distant land of promise. May the seas be held aloof from harming them on their way, and only fail to engulf the evil that would pursue. May they find cordial welcome in their new home; and may there grow from their happiness and love on that uncontaminated shore, a populous civilization, full of religion, industry and peace.—N. Y. Tribune, Oct. 7.

A GRAND RAILROAD PROJECT.—It is currently reported that parties owning a majority of the stock in the California Steam Navigation Company, have arranged a grand railroad programme that has thus far had no equal in point of magnificence or benefits to the State. The prospect is this as near as we can understand it. First, to secure the franchises of the San Francisco and Oakland, and the San Francisco and Alameda Ferry lines of boats and railroads (this is reported to have been already done.) then turn the track of the Alameda Railroad across to San Antonio creek into Oakland, stop the Alameda Ferry, and put the boats of the Alameda line upon the Oakland line, and so convey passengers for Alameda via Oakland, having the boats to leave every twenty minutes the Oakland connection to be made at Goat Island, the Oakland wharf to continue out to that point. The two roads so consolidated are to be continued on to Stockton, and there stop. From the Oakland wharf the company proposes to run a track to the foot hills, thence ground to San Pablo, which rek if carried into effect, will open up a vast —— of coal bearing land for until now by most of swell enquiry, and will, undoubtedly, be of great use —lary to it to the projectors of the enterprise. The other project is to continue the Sacramento Valley and Placerville Railroad to Virginia City, and build a railroad to connect with the Sacramento Valley and the Placerville roads, commencing at Folsom, and running from thence to Taylor's Tavern, thence to Walnut Store, on the Bear two rivers, thence via Brannan Island to the upper part of Rio Vista, and from thence to Benicia, at the junction of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. The California Steam Navigation Company's boats to run up as far as Newport, from San Francisco, and to discontinue their boats to Sacramento. The California Central Railroad Company's track, to be immediately completed from Lincoln to Marysville. By this arrang—ent passengers from San Francisco for Marysville and above, will go to Newport by the California Steam Navigation Company's boats, thence via railroad to Folsom, where they will take the cars of the California Central. Passengers for Sacramento will go to Folsom, thence per cars of Sacramento Valley Railroad to Sacramento City. Persons wishing to go to any place on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, will take the cars for Lincoln and stop at the junction of the California Central and Central Pacific Railroads. Passengers for Virginia City and way points, will go right through from Newport without change of cars. This railroad scheme if carried out (and there is every probability that it will be), will increase the value of property all along the route, and in the end, be not only a splendid speculation pecuniarily for the projectors, but of great benefit to our State.—San Mateo Gazette.

THE LENIENT POLICY EXHAUSTED.—The Sacramento Bee of a recent date, speaks as follows of the danger of adhering to a plan whose inevitable result, unless greatly amended, will be the restoration of prominent rebels to political power:

Eastern advices indicate that the lenient policy is exhausted, and that President Johnson is about to exercise some discrimination in the pardoning of rebels. Those who have been marked as "dangerous" or perverse, will hereafter meet with little favor in Washington. We hope there may be truth in the report. The absolving and restoring to political privilege all such men as Davis, Toombs, Breckinridge, Wigfall, Benjamin and Slidell is a dangerous proceeding, and one only calculated to open anew the wounds of the nation. Admit such men once more to political fraternity and there is no end to the agitation and reckoning that would follow. The friends and adherents of those worthies are anxiously awaiting the re appearance of their favorites on the scene of action. The recent success of Negro and South Carolina has probably opened Andy's eyes.

SOUTHERN LIGHTHOUSES.—The Lighthouse Board is constantly directing the re establishment along the Southern coast of lighthouses destroyed by the rebels during the war. Large appropriations will be required to put the coast in the condition it enjoyed prior to 1861. Nearly every lighthouse from Cape Henry down the Atlantic and Gulf coast, with the exception of a few in Florida, were destroyed by the enemy, the structures being torn down and the lenses broken or carried away.

"Our Missionary Wrecked." The following is the letter in full of Robert Ould, Rebel Commissioner of Exchange of Prisoners, submitted to the Wirtz trial:

CITY POINT, March 17, 1865

Brigadier General Winder—Sir: A flag of truce boat has arrived with 350 political prisoners—Colonel Barrow and several other prominent men among them.

I wish you to send me, at four o'clock on Wednesday morning, all the military prisoners (except officers) and all the political prisoners you have. If any of the political prisoners have on hand proof enough to convict them of being spies, or of having committed other offenses which would subject them to punishment, no state opposite their names. Also state whether you think, under all the circumstances, they should be released. The arrangement I have made works largely in our favor. We get rid of a set of unserviceable wretches and receive some of the best material I ever saw.

Tell Captain Turner to put down on the list of political prisoners the names of Edward C. Bierne and Eugenia Harmanmeister. The Protestant is anxious they should get off. Shall see them here. They, of course, to be released as if you have any female political prisoner whom you can send off safely to keep her company, I would like you to send her.

Two hundred and odd more political prisoners are on their way.

I would be more full in my communication if I had time. Yours, truly. ROBERT OULD, Agent of Exchange.

Spangler, the property man at Ford's Theatre, now residing on the Dry Tortugas, has written a long letter dolorously describing his place of abode, repenting his declaration of entire innocence, and claiming that he never knew anything of the murder until after Booth made his escape. He says, "Booth told me he would make me a handsome present, which he did—six years on the sands of Dry Tortugas."

LETTERS REMAINING UNCLAIMED in the Post Office at Portland, State of Oregon, December 1, 1865.

To obtain any of these the applicant must call for and request letters, give the date of this list, and pay one cent for advertising.

If not called for within one month, they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

In the delivery of letters to parties, at the residences of owners, may be secured by observing the following rules:

1. Direct letters plainly to the correct number, as well as to the post office and State.

2. Head letters with the writer's post office and State, street and number, sign them plainly with full name, and request that answers be sent accordingly.

3. Letters to strangers or transient visitors in town or city, whose special address may be unknown, should be marked, in the lower left hand corner, with the word "Transient."

4. Place the postage stamps on the upper right hand corner, and leave space between the stamps and direction for post marking without interfering with the writing.

5. Write plainly the name of the State to which the letter is to be delivered to the writer—See R. Law of 1864.
